

WILSON IS NOTIFIED

Woodrow Wilson, governor of New Jersey, today was formally notified of his nomination as Democratic candidate for president.

It was a peculiar coincidence that Wilson was notified almost exactly at the moment at which Roosevelt was accepting the nomination of the Progressive party.

Wilson was notified amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm Sea Girt ever knew.

There is little to Sea Girt except the little White House, the New Jersey rifle range, and the depot.

All day long, the crowds kept flocking in by automobile and by train.

By noon, there were over 10,000 people surrounding the little White House and cheering Gov. Wilson every time they saw him.

The special train with the notification committee, and a dozen or so governors, arrived early in the forenoon.

Wilson received the notification committee on the lawn. There were 52 members of the committee, one from each state, the territories and the District of Columbia.

Ollie James, of Kentucky, made the formal notification, eulogizing the candidate in a long speech.

Wilson replied in a speech still longer, in which he laid particular emphasis on the necessity of reducing the tariff and busting up a few trusts.

Wilson said that the Republican party had signally failed to grapple with these two problems.

He said that they were responsible for the high cost of living, and that the Democratic party must depend for success on its handling of these two questions.
